About Ajmer

The city of Ajmer gets its name from 'Ajay Meru'. Roughly translated, it means 'invincible hills'. Nestled in the Aravallis south west of Jaipur, Ajmer was founded by Raja Ajaypal Chauhan in the 7th century AD. Ajmer is home of the famous Dargah Sharif, which houses the Tomb of Garib Nawaz, also known as Moinuddin Chisti, the founder of the Chisti order of Sufism. Ajmer is also known for Mayo College, one of the country's first schools that was a stepping stone for the British style of education. Pushkar is a town in Ajmer district. It is situated about 10 km northwest of Ajmer and about 150 km southwest of Jaipur. It is a pilgrimage site for Hindus and Sikhs.

About College
